Montana CPS abducts teen from family after parents refuse to go along with LGBT “sex change”

The father and step-mother of a 14-year-old Montana girl who was groomed into undergoing a "sex change" to become a "male" have lost custody of their child after Child and Family Services (CFS), which is sometimes called Child Protective Services or CPS in other states, abducted the girl, who now identifies as a "male" named "Leo."

The child, whose birth name is Jennifer, started having issues last August when it was reported by the girl's school that she allegedly tried to kill herself with toilet bowl cleaner and painkiller pharmaceuticals. Jennifer's parents, Todd and Krista Kolstad, said that while there is no way this claim is true, they proceeded to take their daughter to the hospital anyway for an evaluation.

As they suspected, the toxicology reports showed no abnormalities in Jennifer's system. However, medical personnel there started referring to the teen using male pronouns because they have to "do what the patient tells them."

Throughout her stay, young Jennifer was repeatedly groomed into believing "gender-affirming" dogma from the cult of LGBT. Jennifer was told she could have both of her breasts sliced off to make her chest appear more male, something her parents were horrified to later learn.

It was eventually decided by Jennifer's parents that she should receive counseling for her gender dysphoria, which is widely available throughout Montana. Jennifer was also told she could go to Wyoming where, unlike Montana, minors can opt for "gender-affirming" care without parental consent.

(Related: Nearly a decade ago, CPS thugs abducted a four-month-old baby girl from her parents after doctors injected the child with vaccines against her parents' wishes – and believe it or not, this same kind of thing has happened many times in years since.)

When parental authority gets steamrolled by Big Brother

Jennifer already had a bed in Montana at the time, and her parents, Krista and Todd, wanted her to stay there. However, Jennifer would choose to go to Wyoming instead, and not long after she was taken from her parents by CFS and accompanying police officers.

Last September, about a month after the saga began, Jennifer returned to Montana and was put in a Youth Dynamics group home for six to nine months. That term was cut short, though, on January 19 when a judge ordered Krista and Todd to give up custody of their daughter to CFS, who have since decided to send Jennifer to live with her biological mother, Christine, in Canada.

"We were told that letting Jennifer transition and live as a boy was in her 'therapeutic best interest' and because we aren't willing to follow that recommendation, the court gave CFS custody of Jennifer for six months," Krista told the media about the situation, adding that Christine "has never really been a part of [Jennifer's] life."

For daring to speak out against this massive government overreach, Krista and Todd have been held in contempt of court. They recently launched a GiveSendGo (similar to GoFundMe) along with a vow to continue the fight to retrieve their daughter.

On January 29, Todd and Krista made an update to the GiveSendGo explaining that a YouTube video they uploaded about the saga was ordered by a judge to be removed, with threats of contempt of court and even prison time if they refused.

"You may find it there, but due to threats they cannot personally share it at this time, and have no control over its dissemination online, as they are not the ones who posted it on Rumble," the GiveSendGo now reads about the video's availability on YouTube competitor Rumble's platform. "Please pray for them."
